LETTERS

Editor:

In the same month in which I was required to pay my substantially increased mandatory dues to be a compulsory member of the Utah State Bar, I noticed a bold half page advertisement in the Deseret News and The Salt Lake Tribune. The paid advertisement touted the virtues of the recipients of various awards given this year at the State Bar's Annual Meeting.

The Utah State Bar paid more than two thousand seven hundred dollars ($2,700.00+) for those July 18, 1993 ads.

With all due respect to the winners of those awards, whose good qualities and service deserve recognition, the Utah State Bar Commission does not display sound common sense in spending such money. There are more important matters at hand, like paying the mortgage, enforcing discipline and lowering bar dues.
